HopeHealth Celebrated National Health Center Week

HopeHealth celebrated National Health Center Week from August 2-8, raising awareness of the importance of community health centers like HopeHealth. National Health Center Week is held every August to bring awareness to the importance of community health centers like HopeHealth. Staff were encouraged to participate in partner recognition by thanking the community partners they collaborate with to advance patient outcomes. Staff also received a complimentary ice cream treat as a small token of gratitude for their hard work and dedication, and were encouraged to take photos with the #NHCW26 selfie boards.

As part of the week-long emphasis on the importance of people and the power of partnerships in making innovation possible, HopeHealth hosted a Partners in Impact Luncheon on August 4. Held at the Florence Country Club, the Partners in Impact Luncheon brought together community leaders, partners, advocates, and supporters to celebrate the partnerships and people who help advance health and well-being across the communities HopeHealth serves.

The event offered an opportunity to connect, reflect on shared impact, and recognize the important role collaboration plays in building healthier communities. In addition to much-appreciated representation from the South Carolina Primary Care Association, HopeHealth was pleased to welcome Brandon Jones from the National Association of Community Health Centers (NACHC) to the event. HopeHealth and Sellers Brothers Partnership

As part of their continued partnership with HopeHealth, brothers LaNorris and Jayden Sellers participated in two exciting events this summer.

HopeHealth hosted its third-annual Brinner on June 4 at the Florence Country Club. This breakfast-for-dinner fundraising event featured Gamecock greats LaNorris Sellers, (USC quarterback), Jayden Sellers, (USC wide receiver), and Tommy Suggs, legendary sports commentator and USC quarterback (1968-1970). Suggs moderated an engaging Q&A panel, where he acknowledged Florence's unique positioning as a health care hub and hometown to the Sellers brothers. On the success of their partnership with HopeHealth and what it means to them, both brothers emphasized HopeHealth's community impact. LaNorris shared, "HopeHealth has helped me stay healthy from childhood until today. It's always great to give back to them, after all they've done for me." Jayden echoed this sentiment, saying, "They give back to the community, they help people who truly need it. They also helped us a lot growing up, so I want to repay that now."

The event was co-presented by McLeod Health and MUSC Florence Division. Additional key sponsors of the event include Chronic Care Staffing, HUB, Molina, Carrington Wingard, and Jennifer McKay. Event proceeds benefit the HopeHealth Compassionate Care Fund, which helps provide support for patients facing financial hardship and barriers to care. This support includes preventive health screenings, emergency assistance, and more.

HopeHealth teamed up with the Florence YMCA to host The Healthy Huddle: Back-to-School with LaNorris and Jayden Sellers. This exciting event, held on Saturday, July 25, featured SC football quarterback LaNorris Sellers and his brother, SC wide receiver Jayden Sellers, as well as HopeHealth pediatrician Michael K. Foxworth II, MD, FAAP. The children in attendance enjoyed a morning of exercise and mindfulness, then received autographs, photos, healthy snacks, and back-to-school supply giveaways. Over 100 kids got a head start on school readiness thanks to this event! To learn more about HopeHealth's partnerships, visit hope-health.org.

Patient Story Spotlight

A Florence resident, Margaret, came to HopeHealth in Hemingway after facing years of loss and instability. Following more than 40 years of employment, she was unexpectedly replaced during a company transition, triggering depression, mistrust, and fear of judgment. Soon after, Margaret lost both her husband and her mother, compounding her grief and leaving her struggling with guilt and low motivation.

Margaret's situation worsened when she lost continuity of care. Her primary provider became unavailable, and her psychiatrist passed away, leaving her without access to records or treatment. Attempts to establish care elsewhere were discouraging and unprofessional, deepening her sense of hopelessness despite trying to move forward with new employment.

With her daughter's support, Margaret scheduled an appointment at HopeHealth in Hemingway. That visit marked a turning point. She felt respected and understood, appreciated clear communication, and experienced a seamless referral to behavioral health before leaving the clinic; something she had never encountered.

Following the visit, she reported renewed hope and optimism about her continued care, expressing gratitude for a supportive, patient-centered experience that helped restore her confidence.
